Contaminated site given all clear

Northeast Business Park has cleared another environmental hurdle with the removal of a portion of the site from the Queensland Government's Contaminated Land Register.

A 515 hectare portion of Northeast Business Park that previously contained an underground fuel tank and cattle dip has been given the all clear by the Queensland Government's Department of Environment and Resource Management.

North Harbour investor clears the way

As a fresh faced teenager, Northeast Business Park investor Ian Holm worked to help build Sanctuary Cove, the development that sparked the transformation of the Hope Island area on the Gold Coast.

30 years later he dreams of creating a visionary master planned community that can transform the Caboolture region in a similar way.

Greening Australia to lead North Harbour Revegetation

Greening Australia is set to meticulously collect seeds across the 769 hectare North Harbour site near Caboolture as part of an extensive revegetation program.

North Harbour developer Northeast Business Park has partnered with Greening Australia and Caboolture Regional Environmental and Education Centre (CREEC) to execute a seed collection strategy and the back-bending job will have significant long-term environmental benefits.

Approximately 150 species of varying sizes have been identified as part of the strategy.

According to Greening Australia Chief Executive Rod Bristow the aim of collecting seed from existing vegetation is to ensure the local habitat is preserved and the correct species are replanted using seed already adapted to the local conditions.

Northeast Business Park supports Business Achiever awards

Pine Rivers' best small businesses were recognised for their hard work and success earlier this month when they gathered for the Pine Rivers Press Business Achievers Awards.

The awards are sponsored by the developers of Northeast Business Park who are passionate about seeing business fostered in the Caboolture area.

The full house at North Leagues and Services Club for the awards ceremony included 114 finalists in 19 categories.
